TRELICK TOWER

Trellick Tower is an iconic residential building located in the Kensal Town district. Designed by architect Ernő Goldfinger, it was completed in 1972 and stands as one of the most notable examples of brutalist architectural style. With its 31 floors and a height of 98 meters, it features a distinctive design and a separate structure that houses elevators and stairs, connected to the main tower by aerial walkways at regular intervals. Initially criticized for its austere appearance and social degradation, it has become a cultural icon and a symbol of the community over the years. It was listed as a Grade II* building in 1998.
